THIS WEEK

The March 22, 2021 club meeting was called to order by Kent Jester. Jeff Sadler led the group in prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance.

GUEST SPEAKER

Russell Anderson visited this week. He's the Animal Welfare Superintendent for the Animal Welfare Division of the City of Lawton. In the years he has been in charge the shelter has seen a very big, positive, turn-around.

Russell intended to be a game warden on Fort Sill after retiring from the military. Thanks to a hiring freeze he took a job with the city & moved up to run the Animal Welfare Division. He could have went to Fort Sill; the job offer was open when the freeze ended. But the city agreed to conditions and suggestions Russell wanted to run the animal shelter.

One of the first things he did was cut the price of adoptions. Once a month the fee is dropped to $20. They were charging $85 at the time. And then Russell recruited local businesses to sponsor adoption events to help people adopt pets for less or even for free.

When Russell took over he did not want the shelter to be known as a so-called no-kill shelter. A shelter that is high kill puts down 59% or more of its animals. A low kill shelter spares 60% to 89% of its animals and a no-kill shelter spares 90% or more of its animals. But that's not really no kill. Also, pre-natal kittens, puppies, any animals that are sick or show aggression don't count on those numbers. Russell threw out that spin zone nonsense to make his shelter a true transparency shelter. They post figures every month of success rates and make the rates of previous years to the public via places like Facebook.

The Two Hearts Adoption Drive takes place the first Saturday of each month from 10am to 2pm at 2104 SW 6th St downtown.

Previously the animal rescues in our region refused to work with the city. Now the shelter has partnerships with rescues on many fronts.
